Other Options:

Consider making flyers with the animal's photo and description along with your contact information. Good places to post the flyers include: Vet Clinics; Pet Supply Stores; Local Retailers and Restaurants; Dog Park Bulletin Boards; Your Workplace Bulletin Boards.

What YOU can do to help combat pet overpopulation:

1. Always spay or neuter your pets.
2. Always consider adopting from a legitimate shelter or non-profit rescue group first.
3. Carefully consider ALL the responsibilities (and consequences) related to pet ownership before deciding to get a pet, and always make a lifetime commitment to your pet.
4. Education your children, friends, family members and co-workers about pet overpopulation, adoption, and the importance of spaying and neutering.
