Naval Air Station Corpus Christi 2020

MISSION

Naval Air Station Corpus Christi (NASCC) is primarily focused on pilot training. Training Air Wing Four is comprised of four individual units: two primary training squadrons and two squadrons that provide advanced multi-engine training. Training Air Wing Four provides over 600 new, highly qualified aviators every year. The Chief of Naval Air Training (CNATRA) is headquartered at NASCC and oversees all aviation training for the U.S. Navy.

TENANT COMMANDS

Training Air Wing Four - noted in Mission.

Corpus Christi Army Depot (CCAD) is the largest tenant command at NASCC. For more information about CCAD, please see their separate information page.

Chief of Naval Air Training (CNATRA) works to safely train and produce combat quality Naval Aviators and Naval Flight Officers.

Maine Aviation Training Support Group (MATSG-22) enables Marine aviation training through service advocacy and administrative support.

Additional missions at NASCC include U.S. Customs and Border Protection (USCBP), the Defense Logistics Agency, Naval Health Clinic Corpus Christi (NHCCC), and the Armed Forces Reserve Support Center (NOSC).

OUTLOOK

NASCC operates pilot training on Truax Field and three outlying airfields: Navy Outlying Landing Field (NOLF) Waldron, NOLF Cabaniss, NOLF Goliad with landing rights at Aransas County Airport and Corpus Christi International Airport. T-6 Texan, T-44 Pegasus, TC-12 Huron, P-3 Orion, MQ-9 Reaper all operate out of NASCC. NASCC was recently awarded a DEAAG grant to support updated water infrastructure and will be finished in 2020.

PARTNERSHIPS

NASCC supports events such as the Beach-to-Bay Marathon, recognition ceremonies, and parades. NASCC holds several memorandums of understanding with local entities including the City of Corpus Christi, the Corpus Christi Fire Department, the Nueces County Emergency Operations Department, and the Coast Bend Council of Governments. NASCC is also supported by the South Texas Military Facilities Task Force. Additional outreach efforts are also supported by the NASCC Chief Petty Officers Association, the NAS 1st Class Petty Officers Association, the Junior Enlisted Association, and tenant command activities.
